Use of Disclosure information

This Disclosure must be used in accordance with the Code of Practice and any other guidance issued by the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB). Particular attention must be paid to the guidance on the fair use of information in respect of those whose Disclosures reveal a conviction or similar matter.

This Disclosure is issued in accordance with part V of the Police Act 1997, which creates a number of criminal offences. These offences include forgery or alteration of Disclosures, obtaining Disclosures under false pretences and using a Disclosure issued to another person as if it were one's own.

The information contained in this Disclosure is confidential. All recipients of Disclosure information must keep it secure and protect it against loss or unauthorised access.

This Disclosure is not evidence of the identity of the bearer. The details contained within it are those supplied by, or on behalf of, the subject at the time of application and which appear to match any conviction or other details revealed in that identity.

Like the previous police checking procedures which it supersedes, the Criminal Records Bureau uses the Police National Computer record, which serves England and Wales and also holds most relevant convictions in Scotland. Plans are being made to supplement the record with criminal convictions from Northern Ireland, but at present any Northern Ireland convictions may not be reflected in Disclosures.

Disclosure content and accuracy

The information contained in this Disclosure is derived from police records, supplemented by records of those who are unsuitable to work with children held by the Department for Education and Skills and the Department of Health where indicated.

The Criminal Records Bureau is not responsible for any inaccuracy which may be contained in those records. If the person to whom the Disclosure relates is aware of any inaccuracy in the information shown, he or she should contact the Criminal Records Bureau. The CRB will seek to resolve the matter with the individual to whom the Disclosure relates.

Details of the CRB's complaints procedure can be provided on request.

If you find this Disclosure and are not able to return it to the person to whom it relates, please return it to the Criminal Records Bureau or hand it in at the nearest police station.
